C. YOUR ASSOCIATION'S ACTIVITIES

As set out in our Statutes, these are the main Objects of the IPA:

- to uphold and defend the right of publishers to publish and distribute the works of the mind in complete freedom, provided that in so doing they respect all legal rights attached to these works within their own countries and internationally. It is the duty of the Association to oppose steadfastly any attempt or threat to restrict that freedom;
- to promote and protect by all lawful means the principles of copyright on which depend the encouragement of authorship, publishing and dissemination of creative works and to defend copyright against all infringements which may restrict the rights of authors and publishers;
- to promote literacy;
- to promote and represent publishing as a cultural sector and a creative industry.

In this section of the application, you must explain how your recent activities and the policies or strategies that govern your association coincide with the IPA's Objects, and how your association would reinforce the IPA's Objects if your application were successful. This is the most important part of your application, so please consider your answers carefully.

Association's Activities

In the past three years, please identify what your association has done in the four areas listed below. If possible please provide links, references or scanned copies of third-party coverage or mentions of your association's activities, such as news articles.

1a. Promoting and upholding the freedom to publish. In your country are there factors that restrict the freedom of expression or freedom to publish, of publishers, authors, journalists, artists, bloggers, social media users, or political commentators? How does your association defend, promote or strengthen freedom of expression or freedom to publish within your country? Examples: lobbying to change laws limiting freedom of expression, condemning persecution or wrongful prosecution of publishers or writers, raising awareness of the importance of freedom of expression and freedom to publish. Please attach copies of documents illustrating these activities.

[Attachment 2]

1b. In the absence of current freedom to publish challenges in your country, are you ready to defend the freedom to publish in your country in the future or in other parts of the world?

Yes No

2. Promoting copyright. Please describe the commitment of your association to promoting a strong and viable copyright framework that incentivizes publishers to invest in, promote, and disseminate knowledge and creative content. Do you currently engage with your government on legislation, regulations, or judicial proceedings that would either advance or harm publishing? Do you educate policy makers and/or the public about copyright, including its essential role in fostering literature, education, innovation, and modern markets? Please attach copies of statements or other documents illustrating these activities.

[Attachment 3]

3. Promoting literacy, books and reading. Examples: collaborating with government, libraries, and educational authorities to promote the benefits of literacy, books and reading.

[Attachment 4]

4. Supporting the publishing industry's contribution to national culture? Examples: promoting the industry's interests to government or the media, participating in international conferences or fairs, collaborating with other creative industry associations, and supporting efforts to preserve tangible cultural heritage, such as manuscripts.

G. THE VALUE OF THE IPA FOR YOUR ASSOCIATION

The IPA needs to know how we can best help your association.

The IPA is the voice of world publishing. We promote and protect copyright, freedom to publish, literacy and accessibility around the world. We advocate for the social, cultural, financial and political benefits of a free, competitive publishing ecosystem. In Geneva, we speak for publishers at the World Intellectual Property Organization, the World Trade Organization, at the UN Human Rights Council and other supranational bodies. We also intervene at regional and national levels when the common values of publishers are threatened, especially copyright and freedom to publish. A key benefit of IPA membership is also access to and solidarity with the collective expertise of our members.

1. How can the IPA best support your Association in achieving its objectives? Please rate the following activities from 1 (require no support) to 5 (require significant support).

- International lobbying in the field of copyright at WIPO and other fora
- Assistance in lobbying for a national legal framework for copyright protection and enforcement
- Support for national campaigns to highlight the importance of intellectual property rights
- International lobbying in the field of freedom to publish
- Assistance in lobbying your national government on issues related to freedom to publish
- Assistance in addressing issues related to book piracy
- Facilitating access to assistance to enhance national publishing industry policies
- Support for your association's activities to promote literacy
- Production of market data and intelligence on the international publishing market
- Support in developing market data and intelligence on your national publishing market
- Other (Please specify):

H. REFERENCES
